WASHINGTON CENTER FOR Equitable Growth

ECON 101

What Is ECON 101?

ECON 101 is Equitable Growth's nonpartisan briefing series that gives policymakers and their staff a clear, evidence-based grounding in today's most pressing economic issues.

About the Series

Each ECON 101 session pairs Equitable Growth experts with leading academic economists to walk through the fundamentals of a timely policy issue, such as how the U.S. tax code works or how social insurance programs boost economic mobility. Sessions close with an open Q&A. Briefings are designed for congressional and state policymakers and their staff, and are offered in person in Washington, D.C., and virtually.

Why It Benefits the Community

Good policy starts with a shared understanding of the evidence. ECON 101 gives the people who write and evaluate legislation a rigorous grounding in complex economic issues before major decisions are made, drawing on research from Equitable Growth's national network of more than 400 scholars. Briefing slides are shared publicly, so advocates, journalists, and the public can also learn what works to build an economy where growth is broadly shared.

Get Involved

Visit equitablegrowth.org to find upcoming ECON 101 briefings and other Equitable Growth events.

www.equitablegrowth.org

601 13th St NW, 12th Floor
Washington, D.C. 20005

(202) 545-6002

equitablegrowth.bsky.social
equitablegrowth
washington-center-for-equitable-growth @equitablegrowth