WASHINGTON CENTER FOR
Equitable Growth

Equitable Growth PRESENTS

What Is EG Presents?

Equitable Growth Presents: Evidence for a Stronger Economy is a lecture series that brings leading scholars together to explore cutting-edge research on economic inequality and growth.

About the Series

Each Equitable Growth Presents event features a leading researcher sharing new work, often from a forthcoming book or major study. A moderated conversation with scholars, practitioners, and advocates follows, along with questions from the audience. Past speakers include MIT economist Daron Acemoglu on technology and worker power and Mark Rank of Washington University in St. Louis on poverty and income support. Events are held in person in Washington, D.C., and virtually.

Why It Benefits the Community

New research can take years to reach the people who shape policy. Equitable Growth Presents closes that gap by showing how new evidence is shifting important conversations in academia and economic policy, and by opening those conversations to anyone who wants to join. Putting leading scholars in direct dialogue with policymakers, advocates, journalists, and the public helps turn rigorous research into ideas that build a stronger, fairer economy.

Get Involved

Visit equitablegrowth.org to find upcoming Equitable Growth Presents events and watch past lectures.

www.equitablegrowth.org

601 13th St NW, 12th Floor
Washington, D.C. 20005

(202) 545-6002

equitablegrowth.bsky.social
equitablegrowth
washington-center-for-equitable-growth @equitablegrowth